Saturday Night Dances

The Capital City club will inaugurate tomorrow night a series of Saturday night dances, in addition to the weekly affairs on Tuesday night.

Atlanta Women Subscribe

To Grand Opera Guarantee

Looking backward on Atlanta's record in public movements it will be found that on the list of citizens standing for the city's constructive life all lines, the same names have ever led. When one by one these good citizens go out of service into the Great Beyond it is edifying to note that their names still appear in the records of Atlanta's onward march. Among the prominent women subscribing to the opera guarantee fund yesterday were Mrs. R. D. Spaulding, widow of the late R. D. Spaulding, and Mrs. William Green Raul, widow of the distinguished citizen and philanthropist. With the guarantee cards on which their names are inscribed come messages of indorsement to the movement, and their desire to see Atlanta the city leading in all good things.

Writes Mrs. Spaulding:

"I send with pleasure to the Atlanta Music Festival association my subscription to the grand opera guarantee fund. It is one of the few public affairs in which I enjoy participating, and I believe it a medium through which elements of people may be joined in their knowledge and appreciation of music as an art, and an educative influence."

In sending her subscription, Mrs. E. R. Gunby states: "It gives me great pleasure to do my part toward getting to Atlanta the best of anything. There is nothing which holds such fulness of beauty as grand opera. It embraces all the arts. Placed here, it makes Atlanta as unique among the cities of the world. Think of it!—that this year of Atlanta and New York will have the Metropolitan company, and that our city of Atlanta's size in the old world has ever had the audience of Atlanta had the five years of her opera career."

low wage is a possible badge of shame to flaunt the flag of insult in the face of every working woman in the land. Hundreds of thousands of men are underpaid, but we do not think of accusing them of dishonesty. To attempt to find a quick reason for vice and a quick remedy for it by establishing a minimum wage or by other legislation, is procedure that is both dangerous and foolish.

As these various probes become more deliberate and less hysterical they are growing more effective. The "minimum wage" probe ought to have taught reformers a lesson. Mr. Flowerton undoubtedly speaks for the majority of working women.

OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN.

The sudden flight of Provisional President Garza and his troops from Mexico City do not surprise those who have watched the course of events in Mexico. Since Porfirio Diaz took ship from Vera Cruz it has been a case of "off again, on again," with big and little chieftains and dictators. Huerta ousted all of them, and might still have been firmly entrenched had this government seen fit to overlook the treachery of the man who attacked it.

The latest report is that Obregon, the main fighting man for Carranza, is nearing the capital. It may be that means the resurgence of Carranza. If it does, Obregon will be the power behind the throne.

Obregon has been overlooked by the general public in the general confusion prevalent in Mexico. He is a man of culture, of administrative ability and individual force. As a military strategist he is said to compare favorably even with the redoubtable Villa. The latter will have to be reckoned with in any arrangement finally effected. It may be that where the diplomacy of Carranza has failed, the diplomacy of Obregon, backed with bullets, will succeed in bringing the stubborn Pancho to reason. Villa professes mainly to be concerned with the fate of the poems. Obregon ought to be able to satisfy him along that line, since Obregon has heretofore shown himself as sincerely cognizant of the rights of the poem class as Villa himself.

At any rate, the merry scramble is on again. The quicker it is ended the better for Mexico and the American people, who still cast an anxious eye in that direction.

WHAT WINS BATTLES.

Reports from Solons, in France, and also from the eastern theater of conflict, credit the presence of the kaiser with inspiring his troops to fresh endeavors, and final triumph over the enemy. The report raises the question: How much is the element of personal magnetism on part of leaders responsible for military victory?

Napoleon exclaimed when informed that his army had suffered a reverse in the peninsula, "Well, I never in all places at once!" He never discounted the influence of his presence on the fighting men. He knew they would perform prodigies when he was upon the field, that they would find impossible with the stimulus of his personality removed. Caesar, Hannibal, Genghis Khan and other great leaders knew the same secret, and practiced it as far as they could. Some historians hold it as debatable whether personality or military genius played the greater role in the success of generals who stand out conspicuously.

The sensible answer would seem to be a compromise, since, to quote Napoleon, no general can be in all places at one time, and the most intrepid leader cannot carry to victory an unorganized, ill-fed or disgruntled rabble. Organization and the commissary play part in the scheme, as Napoleon would himself have testified.

The European war presents a mighty exception to all rules. Here most of the commanders give their orders by long distance and wireless or couriers. It is laughable to picture Joffre or Hindenburg covering personally a line of battle 250 miles in length. Even could they make the trip in a day, as fast as they stifled one portion of the line the other would sag, if it depended upon the personal equation of the leader only for results.

At the last analysis it is numbers, organization, equipment, the commissary and military genius that make up the victorious combination, and it looks like the various elements come in the order named. It sounds spectacular to say the presence of the kaiser or Sir John French or Joffre inspired their men to victory. Cold-blooded analysis does not bear out the claim, unless it is liberally qualified.

Since there are no claimants for the Nobel Peace Prize, why not invest it in bread for Belgium?

It isn't such a hard, iron age. There are numerous occasions of poetry and one or two that print it.

The Hague palace looks as pretty as ever in the pictures.

EXEMPTING COLLEGES FROM TAXATION

Editor Constitution: California bore for years the unenviable distinction of being the only state in the union that taxed all college property, including the very grounds and buildings used in the work of instruction. The cause of this notoriety no longer exists, for a constitutional amendment was adopted in November which exempts not only the grounds and buildings but all the "realities and immovables" of colleges which are not conducted for a profit.

The referendum law of California provides that a pamphlet shall be sent to every voter, setting forth the proposed law which is to be passed on at a general election, and in this advocates and opponents of any measure may publish their arguments to the voters. The first argument is as follows: "Every state in the union, except California, exempts college property from taxation. California should not be the only state to tax the investment of private capital in higher education. In all other states the income from benefactions to colleges may be used for the support of the state, and the benefactions are made: here it must be in part devoted to the support of the state, and the lighting of streets. Thus California affords a distinct disadvantage with patrons of education in California that every dollar used for the purpose intended."

The argument is that it is unfortunately not true that California has been the only state which did not exempt college property from taxation. It is one of the states of this kind, and Georgia is one of them.

The last reason offered for the adoption reads: "So thoroughly convinced were the lawmakers that this amendment is right and fair that it passed the last legislative session by a vote of 100 to 0, and without one dissenting vote in either chamber."

SUPPOSED TO BE LOST, NO SIGN OF COLD WAVE
STEAMER MAKES PORT LATE THURSDAY NIGHT

The Angelo Parodi, Reported at Sea's Bottom, Is Towed Into New York Harbor. One Sure Is on the Way, However, According to Forecaster.

[illegible]

During Monday night the Parodi drifted away from the Itasca in thick weather. The cutter searched all day Tuesday and yesterday for the ship, and not finding it sent a wireless message last night to Norfolk expressing belief that the ship had been about 100 miles off Cape Henry with all hands aboard. The cutter was strengthened, the wireless message said, by the fact that the cutter encountered a mass of wreckage in the vicinity of Cape Henry.

After the Parodi became separated from the Itasca, her officers said today: "The Itasca was last seen at 2 o'clock in the morning of January 26. The Crios got a line to the helpless vessel, but the Itasca could not be recovered." The Parodi is the second one achieved by the Crios in successive voyages. On her last voyage, from New Frome in Piraeus, on November 23, the Crios left with the British steamer Gripwell, which had lost her propeller and towed her to Gibraltar, 500 miles.

The Crios left Genoa, Italy, thirty-three days ago, for Baltimore.

The weather will be cold, "its true but not exceedingly cold—just about like Thursday's, which was entirely agreeable." Today will be fair.

Tomorrow.

But that's the same story that's been in the paper every morning.

Nothing is so essential to health in advancing age as keeping the bowels open. It makes one feel younger and fresher and forestalls colds, piles, fevers and other dependent ills.

Cathartics and purgatives are violent and drastic in action and should be avoided. A mild, effective and safe cathartic is the one used by physicians and thousands who have used it, is the combination of simple herbs with pepsin sold by druggists everywhere under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Cut, out pills, castor oil, laxative water, salts, suppositories, etc. They rip and tear and weaken your system. Tu-Bo-Lax instead, comes as a helping friend to you and to physicians, who have had to largely depend upon purgatives, suppositories or injections.

To-Bu-Lax is a blessing to humankind. It is a safe, effective and soothing and beneficial in effect. Adulterated with opium, it is the strongest purgative without inconvenience or debilitating effect. To-Bu-Lax is the only "Little Blue Pill" that is safe for the schoolmaster of the bowels—it teaches the bowels to move.

To-Bu-Lax at once appeals to physicians, because it is a new idea with a new effect. It is a new idea because it gives the bowels a rest. It is giving it heartiest support. To-Bu-Lax is the only "Little Blue Pill" without disturbing the function of any organ. It will appeal to the home physician because it is a new idea in emergency. No traveler should start a journey without a tube of To-Bu-Lax.

Castor oil, salts, purgative waters and other cathartics cannot give place to this remedial agent. It is the only one.

CRACKERS MAY GET THREE MORE BROWNS

Manager Smith Expects Letter From Manager Rickie Friday.

Manager Bill Smith expects to receive a letter from Manager Branch Rickie of the St. Louis Browns, today, and in this letter will probably be some more good news for Atlanta fans. The local manager is not after the services of a couple of outfielders and an infielder, and it is possible that this letter will inform the local mogul that these players have been turned over to the Browns.

American Association Will Be Major League Before Season Starts

Chicago, January 28.—The American Association has taken another step toward the highest, no far in its progress toward the high places of baseball, according to President Livingston, having secured from the national commission the promise that the major league power of draft over it will be given.

The commission also has agreed to grant the association the right to enter certain American Association cities and will turn over a number of the world's championship series to "steps not yet taken," according to Mr. Livingston.

The concession first announced today by President Livingston, however, is that the association a major league as far as the draft is concerned, Livingston said. What other differentiations will be made in later negotiations will be arranged by the commission, though action is not expected until after a decision in the anti-trust suit is concluded.

Meanwhile information regarding the future of the American Association is being withheld, Livingston said. "I am not prepared to say anything about it," he said. "I am not prepared to say anything about it," he said. "I am not prepared to say anything about it," he said.

The recent match engagement with Alfred Deiro, the Cuban master, Rogers did not mean that he was a failure in the technical arena, as he has a good idea of how good Rogers is at winning.

The match will start promptly at 8 o'clock after which there will be an exhibition of fancy and trick shots, of which he is capable of making.

Pitcher Cook Is Turned Back

Two more signed contracts reached baseball headquarters Thursday, bringing the total of players now signed up to fourteen, with twelve men yet to be signed up.

The signed contract of Pitcher O. H. Williams, who twirled for Columbus and Albany in the Sally league, last season, was received yesterday morning.

Williams did not get off to a very good start with Columbus, but he was turned up to Albany, where he was a principal asset in Albany, winning the second half pennant.

Frank Maun, former Cracker third baseman, who managed the Browns, stakes his reputation on Williams making a regular when cutting down period.

SENATOR WALSH'S REPLY TO FLETCHER'S CHARGES

For That Reason, Senator Fletcher Says, Administration Pushes Ship Purchase Bill—Walsh Replies to Root.

Washington, January 28.—Democracy of the senate today was returning the fire of republicans attacking the government ship purchase bill. Senator Walsh delivered an elaborate argument maintaining the unquestionable right of the United States to acquire belittled owned merchant ships and Senator Fletcher, in charge of the bill, followed with a speech charging that the "Rockefeller-Morgan-Perkins interests" were behind opposition to the measure.

Senator Fletcher declared the system of interlocking directorates existing to the shipping world was probably without parallel in financial history. One by one he took up the list of directors of steamship companies engaged in American foreign and coastwise trade and told of the financial connections of the individual directors.

Alleged Shipping Trust. "I am warranted in the conclusion," said the senator, "that 99 per cent of the coastwise and practically the entire foreign American shipping is in the hands of those allied with the National City Bank, the United States Trust company, the National Bank of Commerce, the Guaranty Trust company, all having for their head the Rockefeller-Morgan-Perkins interests."

"It is against these interests that the government is fighting for the measure," said the senator, "and the reason the measure is a break-through in this financial system is because that entrance will break the chains by which the independent lines are kept out of the market. The government's entrance means a break-through in this financial system because that entrance will break the chains by which the independent lines are kept out of the market."

"There may be valid arguments against the measure," said the senator, "but the measure is a break-through in this financial system because that entrance will break the chains by which the independent lines are kept out of the market."

Walsh Replies to Root. Senator Walsh, in an elaborate argument, replied to Senator Root's declaration that international difficulties would result from the measure, quoted Root's declaration that the measure would result from the measure, quoted Root's declaration that the measure would result from the measure.

Point at Issue. Senator Walsh declared the "one thing that must be proved under international law is that the transfer of ships from one country to another is a transfer of ships from one country to another."
